

Foreign buyer tax amended

by The Canadian Press | 30 Jan 2017

CANADIAN
Real Estate Wealth

Most Read

New development in market popular among investors

Is this traditional student rental market ready for luxury homes?

No end in sight for growth of demand in Vancouver rental sector - report

Lack of supply is placing an immense burden on the Vancouver rental market, report authors say

---

15,000 transactions in an approximately seven-week period ending Aug. 1, but the number dropped to a low of about 4,700 for the month of October.

The data shows there were about 1,970 purchases involving foreign buyers in the period ending Aug. 1, compared to 60 in the rest of August and about 200 in November.

Copyright © 2017 Key Media Pty Ltd

British Columbia's premier has announced her government is amending its tax on foreigners buying property in Metro Vancouver.

Christy Clark says the levy will be lifted for those who have a work permit and pay taxes in B.C., in order to encourage more people to come to the province. The 15 per cent foreign buyers tax was implemented last August in a bid to cool skyrocketing real estate prices.

Government data released earlier this month shows there was a steep drop in real estate transactions in the Vancouver area last summer after the tax was introduced.

Tax revenues from property transfers in Metro Vancouver show there were about