Scope: Exterior repaint

Client: Donald Tatham; Steelhead Contracting Renovation

In June 2006, Steelhead Contracting Renovation made Wolfgang Commercial Painters their subcontractor of choice for the challenging building envelope rehabilitation heritage structure at 518 St. Georges Place in Vancouver.

The project involved extensive surface preparation including washing, scraping & sanding, caulking, and priming. Color requirements and standards for this two-story walkup were strict and all work had to pass muster of a heritage consultant, always a tricky business. Wolfgang was able to match the original Pratt & Lambert colors General Paint with no problems.

Ten days and one happy client later, Wolfgang brought the project home on time and to specifications. Steelhead's Donald Tatham said, "Throughout the course of their work on the project, Wolfgang Painters demonstrated a high degree of skill and experience producing work of very high quality which was consistent with the 'Standards and Guidelines for the conservation of historic places in Canada'. We greatly appreciate the contribution Wolfgang Painters made to the success of this project."

Sean Semke, a painter for Wolfgang got more than he bargained for while doing some spraying work for a building in Anmore. While at the top of a forty foot ladder, he accidentally disrupted a small family of bats that expressed their displeasure by swarming him. Luckily, Sean remained calm and the disgruntled bats moved on, but I admits it's an experience he'll never forget.

This September, Wolfgang Commercial Painters bids farewell to its beloved Mark Assistant, Dennis Ma as he heads back to the UBC campus to study Commerce. His place is Heinrich Schoeman, a recent SFU graduate. Heinrich stood out head shoulders above the many other contenders for this desirable position, and Wolfgang Painters extends a warm welcome to this new member of the team.

Dennis has nothing but fond memories and good things to say about his time with Wolfgang: "My experience at Wolfgang has been extremely rewarding: I have learned more than I had ever imagined, gained significant industry intelligence and can say that I am proud to have been a part of Wolfgang Commercial Painters. The company has repeatedly exceeded customers' expectations and that does not hold any less when it comes to its employees. Thank you Kevin and Dave for giving me the incredible opportunity of working at the forefront of a fast-growing business with admirable values and for constantly creating such opportunities in this industry."
